Shadows were creeping upon the rich grassy glades of the forest and it was at this late hour that he set out on his quest. So far as he could plan, he would go by way of the winding path, to the far end, down by the dell, and wait until sundown. He was in no very placid state of mind, yet it was his anxiety as well as the fact of his promise to call at Don's, that made him the more determined. Step by step he went, not quite sure of what he was about, but he knew that he was on the right track. His heart was pounding in his chest as he finally reached the dell, and he stopped to catch his breath before proceeding further. He knew that he was getting close to his destination, and he quickened his pace, determined to reach it before it was too late.

He was in no very placid state of mind, yet it was his anxiety as well as the fact of his promise to call at Don's, that made him the more determined. Step by step he plodded on until the last rays of the sun were hidden by the density of the trees, and as he made his way he mused over his plans. He would meet the man and conduct him to the hut of the hermit or to that of the lone resident by the river brink. At either of these places they could unravel the details in the midnight silence. No problem would easily baffle the crafty brain of his companion and the procedure they would adopt must in more than one way outwit their rival’s claims. With increasing eagerness he quickened his pace and made straight for the place assigned for their meeting. Counting every moment impatiently, half-an-hour had passed before he could dimly see the approaching form of his accomplice, with swift, regular and light-footed steps typical of the virile temperament of the man. In a breathless string of words he told of his forced delay by a roundabout route and of the need for a hasty exit from the dell. Could they not spare the time to make a scanty plan? No! They must be away with all possible speed and elude their pursuers. At a frantic pace they hurried off the beaten path into the thick bracken, which, if it were possible to penetrate, would bring them into direct line with the hermit’s hut, and once there, all possible chance of discovery could be ignored. After half-an-hour struggling their way through the thick bracken they were astonished to see the faint glow of a dying fire. Had their journey been anticipated?
